

The Åbenrå Hospital in Denmark wishes to reach out to its patients and give them a welcome more like that of a hotel reception than a hospital. Visitors must feel reassured in an atmosphere of diligence, care and consideration. The people depicted on the pillars typify not just Danes in general but the population of southern Jutland specifically. This to emphasize the involvement of the local community in this hospital.

Fotograaf	Dorte Krogh
Locatie	Åbenrå, Danmark
Interieurontwerper	Ane Mette Ruge
Architect	Århus Arkitekter A/S, og Creo Arkitekter A/S

Gebruikte producten

