

Audika Hearing Clinic

When people first see the Flotex Wood planks at Audika Hearing Clinic, they almost always think it's luxury vinyl flooring. The design is so realistic, it takes a second look to realise, it's not vinyl at all, but a unique textile floor covering. The surprise is always followed by the same question: "What kind of flooring is this?" Flotex combines the visual appeal of wood look vinyl with the comfort and acoustic benefits of textile. In a hearing clinic like Audika, where noise control is critical, Flotex makes perfect sense. It helps soften the sound of footsteps, creating a quieter, more professional environment for both patients and staff. Unlike traditional carpet, which can quickly show dirt in high traffic areas, Flotex is easy to clean, often with just water. Its durability and hygiene performance make it ideal for clinics, especially when paired with Sarlibase underlay, which adds even more sound insulation and underfoot comfort. With Flotex, Audika didn't have to compromise. They achieved the warm, sophisticated look they wanted, along with practical benefits that support their day to day operations.
