

Bacchus Marsh Hospital

One of the most important things to consider when it comes to flooring in a healthcare facility is safety. The flooring needs to be safe for patients, visitors, and staff. It also needs to be hygienic and easy to clean, as floor coverings in healthcare environments are often exposed to a wide variety of spills from a wide range of chemicals. Homogeneous vinyl flooring is one of the most popular options for hospitals because it meets all of these requirements and more. Neutral colours with high reflectance values (LRV'S) such as white, pale blue, green, and grey are typically used within the atmosphere to create a welcoming and calm environment that helps patients and visitors feel at ease. Bacchus Marsh Hospital theatres were built by Hutchinson Builders and using the newest state-of-the-art operating equipment. Forbo's Sphera homogeneous vinyl flooring was chosen thanks to its SMART PUR finish providing excellent performance, high scratch resistance, chemical, and stain resistance providing easy floor care. Sphera is phthalate-free, emitting very low emissions and is certified by Green Tag along with achieving best practice PVC requirements, makes Sphera the ideal flooring choice for healthcare facilities.
