

Bureau Kroner Architects

Bureau Kroner Architects is known for its well-thought-out designs that combine functionality and experience. For its own pavilion, the focus was on an interior that is bright, sustainable and inspiring. The choice of flooring plays a central role in this. The communal areas feature Marmoleum Walton in the colour Petrol. This flooring is sleek, contemporary and made from natural raw materials. In the meeting room, Bureau Kroner opted for Tessera Harmony carpet tiles in the colour Aqua symphony. The warm texture and fresh colour nuance creates comfort and tranquility – ideal for consultation and concentration. Architect and owner Mark Graafland is enthusiastic: 'I am a fan of Marmoleum. It is a floor that has it all: sustainable, easy to maintain and with a look that always works. For me, it feels like you can vary endlessly with one material.' The result is an interior that reinforces the identity of Bureau Kroner: future-oriented, sustainable and with an eye for detail. An inspiring example of how smart material choices give meaning to a space.
