

Construction and project management Exeler Lingen

The construction and project management Exeler, based in Lingen, specializes in comprehensive services in the area of construction and project management. With many years of experience, the company supports construction projects from planning to completion and attaches particular importance to quality, adherence to deadlines and cost security. The services include, among other things, construction management, project management, tendering and awarding as well as construction supervision. Your construction project management stands for innovative solutions, precise implementation and close cooperation with clients, architects and craft businesses in order to realize every construction project successfully and efficiently. The modern NordNeun office building in Lingen reflects the professional orientation of the construction and project management Exeler. There is a lot to discover in the building thanks to the variety of materials used in construction and furnishings. NordNeun is not just an office building, but also a display object. This means that a lot of things can be shown to customers directly on site - a presentation in a class of its own. The climate-positive Marmoleum, linoleum from Forbo, was chosen as the floor covering. The subtle floor covering in a light gray tone fits perfectly with the other materials such as wood and the colors of the furniture. The durable covering is particularly resilient and can withstand the heavy traffic in offices. The sustainable and easy-care floor covering also contributes to a pleasant working atmosphere. The NordNeun office building received the "Sustainable Building" certificate. This honors objects that focus on a positive contribution to climate protection and the use of Marmoleum.
