

E-Bike Campus, Kusterdingen

Kusterdingen has a new showcase reference with the Bosch E-Bike Campus. E-bike drives are developed and marketed on more than 24,000 square metres - in laboratories and offices that represent the working world of tomorrow and demonstrate Bosch's future-oriented corporate culture. Directly next to the e-bike test track is the five-storey administration building with offices, meeting rooms and production and development departments. Here, open and modern room concepts promote team spirit and creativity. Open Spaces, Workbenches and Thinking Cells thus prove the end of classic individual offices at Bosch. Office and administrative space require a robust floor covering that promises employees in the open-plan offices effective impact sound insulation. With an impact sound improvement of at least 14 decibels, Marmoleum Acoustic meets the high demands of building owners and architects and, with its eternity colour, blends harmoniously into the modern overall concept. Floor applications such as zebra stripes, tyre profiles and bicycle symbols were digitally printed and professionally applied to the surface using foiling technology. In addition, all meeting rooms on the e-bike campus follow a visual colour concept - in the Marmoleum colours scarlet, greek blue and leaf. Server rooms, production and development departments: In order to protect electronic components such as e-bike batteries safely and permanently from electrostatic charging, the planners' attention was focused on a particularly safe and secure floor solution: the choice fell on the Colorex SD conductive vinyl tile from Forbo Flooring. For the server rooms, Marmoleum Ohmex on raised access flooring offered the ideal solution and easy access to the technically complex installation networks. *All Marmoleum products are based on the Fresco colours and were produced as acoustic variants on request.
