

Geberit B.V.

Geberit is a Swiss multinational group specializing in the production and supply of sanitary components and related systems. It is a leader in its field in Europe with a global presence through its subsidiaries. For years sustainability has played an important role for Geberit. For example in the form of water-saving products, new logistics solutions or energy-efficient production lines and responsible training. It is absolutely worth it: for the environment, society, customers and partners, employees and shareholders. Nieuwegein has the Dutch office with course rooms and showroom. The new design of the entire office and showroom is based on water, piping and sustainability. Employees, students (plumbers) and other customers come to the building. This means that in addition to tough materials (black steel and concrete), some softer materials and colors have also been used (wood and copper). Water and piping are the concept of design
