

Maersk Tower

The Maersk Tower is a state-of-the-art research building whose innovative architecture creates the optimum framework for world-class health research and stands out as a landmark in Copenhagen, while also contributing to developing the local area. The Maersk Tower is an extension of Panum, the University of Copenhagen's Faculty of Health and Medical Sciences, and includes both research and educational facilities, as well as a conference centre with auditoriums and meeting rooms, which are connected to the latest technology.
