

Nomura Research Institute

Architects at UltraConfidential Design wanted to create an office space for Nomura Research Institute, a Japanese consulting giant, which would offer a fun and friendly environment. A mix of concrete and light wooden shades was used from the Allura and Flotex ranges. The synergy of Flotex and Allura ensures comfort with performance.

|                    |                           |
|--------------------|---------------------------|
| Interior architect | UltraConfidential Design  |
| Location           | Gurgaon, India            |
| Project name       | Nomura Research Institute |

Used Products

Flotex Colour
Calgary ash

XX Allura Wood
central oak

