

The Bon Secours Care Village Expansion project

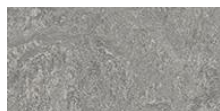

OCMA was commissioned to extend the existing care village, which provides long-term care for 67 residents as well as seven apartments for independent living. The motive for extending the facility was to provide additional beds plus associated support and social spaces, so as to meet the current demand for elderly care in the vicinity of Cork, Ireland. Marmoleum had been used throughout the existing facility when it was built 16 years prior to the expansion, and it has remained in excellent condition despite the rigorous healthcare cleaning requirements. The client and OCMA were pleased with the demonstrated durability of Forbo's Marmoleum and decided to continue using this flooring material in the new wings.

Project name	The Bon Secours Care Village Expansion project
Builder	Eamon Costello Kerry Ltd.
Location	Cork, Ireland
Architect	O'Connell Mahon Architects (OCMA)
Photographer	Ros Kavanagh
Flooring contractor	MJ Spillane Flooring

Used Products

Marmoleum Real
Sahara

Marmoleum Real
serene grey

