

Thoughtworks Stuttgart

Thoughtworks in Stuttgart is a global technology consultancy that combines strategy, design and software development. The Stuttgart office was founded in 2019 and is the youngest and fastest growing of Thoughtworks Germany's five locations. The consulting projects in the Stuttgart region cover a wide range of customers from automotive companies to LoT experts. The architectural firm Studio Carcasse has designed a modern and flexible office for Thoughtworks that supports traditional ways of working. An elegant color concept was implemented with individual furniture and climate-positive floor coverings from Forbo Flooring. Through close coordination with employees, an environment was created that combines functionality with a feel-good atmosphere. High-quality and sustainable interior design ensures a mix of living room comfort and an agile working environment in which social interaction and individual work are equally promoted. The architects decided to use Marmoleum Cocoa as flooring, a sustainable and innovative linoleum variant from Forbo enriched with ground cocoa bean shells. The covering is made from natural raw materials and is also particularly durable and easy to care for. Even the high level of foot traffic caused by employees or the strain caused by chair castors do not pose a challenge for the floor covering. The scattered cocoa bean shells create a natural, slightly structured surface with a pleasant feel. The wide range of colors can be perfectly integrated into modern office designs, as here at Thoughtworks.

Date d'achèvement 2021

Lieu Stuttgart

Photographe Studio Carcasse | Steve Bergmann

Revêtements de sol utilisés

