

VINGSTED hotel & konferencecenter

Challenge: The center needed a new look of their reception area. Visually, it was a challenging project, and did not meet the requirement of a modern reception area. There were also environmental issues to consider in terms of noise, climate and light.

Solution: Based on a workshop with reception staff a "manuscript" was written to identify the everyday tasks of their reception. Afterwards, the necessary scenography was created, for everyone to work and perform optimally. A series of site-specific reference furniture with strong inspiration from the surrounding architecture were created.

The materials chosen were ash and various types of linoleum because both types of material help to create a healthy climate. In addition, linoleum has an acoustic effect.
