

Vingsted hotel & conference center

The Vingsted hotel & conference center needed a new look of their reception area. Visually, it was a challenging project, as the current look did not meet the requirement of a modern reception area. There were also environmental issues to consider in terms of noise, climate and light. Based on a workshop with reception staff a “manuscript” was written to identify the everyday tasks of their reception. Afterwards, the necessary scenography was created, for everyone to work and perform optimally. A series of site-specific reference furniture with strong inspiration from the surrounding architecture was created. The materials chosen were Forbo Bulletin Board and Furniture Linoleum, because both types of material help to create a healthy climate. In addition, linoleum has an acoustic effect.
