wp_westermann products develops more than furniture series and room systems: clever solutions for variable workplaces that impress with their form, function and sustainability. The traditional company relies on Furniture Linoleum from Forbo Flooring for tabletop surfaces. The motu series follows the example of archetypal furniture, interpreting it in a contemporary way, reducing it to its substance in order to equip it with innovative technology and implement it with the latest materials. The basic design of the electrically or pneumatically height-adjustable motu tables is enormously changeable and customisable through countless variants and always remains in motion - and with it its users: freedom of movement from sitting, standing, working for oneself or in a team. From the mobile project table to the ergonomic work table in homely materials for the home office to the height-adjustable micro workstation: motu - work in motion. For all its products, Westermann attaches great importance to high quality craftsmanship, long service life and sustainability. Against this background, it is a matter of course for the tradition-rich company that Furniture by Forbo, which is made from natural and rapidly renewable raw materials, is available as the table surface of choice for wp_westermann products - on elegant solid core board, birch plywood or with a high-quality ash edge. The pleasant feel, the silky-matt, warm surface and the good ageing properties are perfectly suited to the attitude and timeless design of the motu tables. The wide range of colours in the Furniture collection offers all planners plenty of scope, and the production department is delighted with the uncomplicated workability and the reliably high quality of every delivery.
