COMMERCIAL OFFICES

We understand that a holistic approach to commercial office design is important, in order to have a positive effect on an employee's productivity, health, well-being and satisfaction. That's why our design team has created a comprehensive portfolio of textile and resilient modular flooring solutions that can help you to create high-quality and fully functional spaces, at various price points.

We also have a wide range of stocked products in the UK to ensure a speedy turnaround for your project.

Designing for wellbeing

Studies have shown that a focus on employee and workplace wellbeing can result in improved productivity, increased morale, less sick days and better staff retention. Key factors such as lighting, indoor air quality, noise control and thermal comfort can all contribute to better indoor office environments. Our product portfolio is designed with these key design factors in mind, from Allergy UK approved products, acoustic solutions to high LRV ratings.

Designing for the mind

What's more, when it comes to designing a workplace environment, it's also vital to consider those living with neuro-diverse conditions, as they can experience challenges negotiating interior environments, similar to people with dementia. Indeed, dementia-friendly environments are no longer just a consideration for care facilities, which is why Forbo has partnered with the Dementia Services Development Centre (DSDC) to assess over 1000 of its flooring finishes, to ensure that there is plenty of choice when it comes to creating inclusive environments.
