Forbo Flooring Systems publishes 2019 Sustainability Report

Eighth consecutive year of reporting environmental improvement for Flooring Systems

The use of biogas, reduction in CO₂ levels and making a real start on solutions for the circular economy are some of the topics that are covered in Forbo Flooring Systems eighth consecutive Sustainability Report. This report has been made following the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) guidelines.

Forbo Flooring Systems shows improvements in the environmental performance of all product groups. There is higher recycled content in the textiles portfolio, a larger phthalate free offer in vinyl and a unique CO₂ neutral proposition on the cradle to gate product release of the linoleum portfolio, without using offsetting. Moreover Flooring Systems has made a real start in designing the components for the circular economy of its products.

Starting with green product design principles and by going all the way from responsible sourcing to efficient manufacturing and environmentally committed sales organizations, Flooring Systems Executive Vice president, Jean-Michel Wins explains how a unique concept and insight helps Flooring Systems to set its goals.

The report can be found on local FFS websites as from 24/06/2020
